I think it's utterly ridiculous to reward a monopolist entity that has proven time and again to have no respect for morality, fair play, or even the law. If the DOJ cannot see that the placement of one's product in an institution for education is a huge benefit, I have honest concerns about the competence of the government to deal with these matters in today's world. If this settlement goes through, it will send the message to businesses that fair competition and business ethics are an optional hindrance.
